A SAFER WORKPLACE IS A MORE PROFITABLE WORKPLACE

THE TRUE COST OF CLEANING:

The "true cost of cleaning" is more than just product cost, it includes all items needed to complete the cleaning process (specialized PPE, water, ventilation, transport, wastewater treatment, etc.) It also includes the cost of regulatory compliance, environmental impact, line downtime, and worker injury or illness.

CHEMICAL INJURIES IN THE WORKPLACE:

Workers exposed to caustic chemicals have a higher risk of chemical burns, respiratory issues, eye and other injuries.

- The direct and indirect costs of chemical injuries in the U.S. are significant, with estimates reaching up to $128 million[1] annually.
- In 2020 there were over 42,000[2] nonfatal occupational injuries involving chemical products.
- The average cost of a worker's compensation claim involving chemical exposure can exceed $41,000[3].

USING SAFER, NON-CAUSTIC SIMPLE GREEN SOLUTIONS CAN SAVE MONEY

Additional ways companies can save by switching from caustic chemical cleaners to safer, non-caustic chemistry.

- Safety Compliance[4]: OSHA enforces strict regulations regarding chemical handling and exposure. Using non-hazardous cleaners reduces the complexity & cost of compliance, including potential fines for violations.
- Reduced Training Costs[5]: Handling caustic chemicals requires extensive safety training & ongoing education.
- Lower Waste Disposal Costs[6]: Disposal of hazardous chemical waste is expensive and strictly regulated.
- Specialized PPE Costs[7]:Companies can save between 20% to 40% on PPE costs by switching to non-hazardous materials.
- Lower Insurance Premiums[8]: Companies with fewer workplace injuries can often negotiate lower insurance premiums.
- Transportation Costs[9]: Companies can save up to 50% on transportation costs by switching to non-hazardous chemicals.

Healthier employees are more productive. Chemical injuries and illnesses can lead to longer recovery times and decreased morale. Using safer cleaning products reduces the risk of such injuries, which in turn reduces employee turnover and improves performance.
